ENGLEWOOD, CO - Affinity TruFrame Cabinetry has set out a catalog of door styles and finish materials for the custom cabinets it sells through its Englewood, Colorado, design studio and authorized dealers. The company's website lists 39 door styles, from raised-panel designs such as Fairfield and Cranbrook to flat slab fronts such as Carmel, and 18 woods and surfaces. Four of those styles, Athena, Fairfax, Fairfield and Heartland, are also offered in an optional Hewn version.

“Premium wood species, painted finishes, and specialty coatings,” said Cayd Bader, owner of Affinity TruFrame Cabinetry. “Every finish is hand-applied with a multi-step process for lasting beauty.”

The two catalogs appear as companion pages on the company's website and are meant to be used together. A designer or homeowner can start with a profile in the door style catalog , then open a material page to review the stains and colors listed for that surface. Physical samples can be requested, and the same options can be compared in person at the Englewood design studio . Not every profile is offered in every material; the Aurora style, for example, is listed with thermograin and acrylic only.

The finish library is organized by material, so each wood or surface has its own set of stains and paints instead of a single shared color list. Alder and knotty alder are each shown with 18 finishes, walnut and rift white oak with 14 each, and maple with six. Painted cabinets are listed with 42 colors, thermograin textured laminates with 30, and acrylic with 20, in both gloss and matte. Taken together, the 18 material pages list 286 finish options, and the collections page states that more than 200 finishes are available; custom paint or stain matching can also be requested.

Completed kitchens and other rooms that use these combinations appear in the company's project showcase , which currently lists 17 projects and more than 75 photographs. One entry, the Moltz Residence, pairs the Studio door style with rift white oak in a Sedona finish. Other projects in the same gallery use styles such as Cranbrook, Fairfield, Carmel and Aurora, with materials that include beech, alder, thermograin, acrylic and paint. The same gallery also includes two displays from the company's own studio, one finished in rustic hewn hickory and another in walnut with a Bourbon stain.

The cabinets are built on the company's TruFrame construction, an inverted flush face frame that provides a full-access interior with 1/8-inch reveals and supports both inset and full overlay doors. Soft-close hinges, soft-close drawer slides and solid wood dovetail drawers are listed as standard. The same construction can be specified for kitchens, bathrooms and other built-in work. Affinity TruFrame Cabinetry works with homeowners, dealers and design professionals from its studio at 15030 Compark Blvd, Suite 145, in Englewood.
