DOVER, DE - Grandmix Store, an online home goods brand that sells metal decor and storage pieces, has published a gift guide for wall decor. Released on November 12, 2026, the article groups 20 gift ideas by recipient and explains how to choose a size, a finish and enough time for an order. It also covers personalization, such as names and dates.

“Every piece starts as a flat sheet of galvanized steel,” said Emrah Bilaloglu, Creative Director of Grandmix Store. “We cut it to your order, finish it in an even electrostatic powder-coat, and give it a final look-over on the bench, so what arrives is the piece we would hang in our own home.”

The brand sells wall decor, storage racks and other home goods through its website. The article says a metal gift can remain on a wall for years and can be made personal when a name or date is cut into the steel. The full planning guide is available on the Grandmix Store website.

Ideas are grouped by recipient, including couples, families, new homeowners, and people with interests in cars, travel, games or nature. For couples, the guide points to personalized designs that can include two names and a meaningful date. For families and new homeowners, it names family-name maps, line-art pieces and larger designs for a living room wall.

When the wall size is uncertain, the article recommends a medium piece of about 24 to 32 inches, or 61 to 81 centimeters, which can sit above a desk, console or nightstand. Larger walls above a sofa or bed are directed toward pieces of about 39 to 47 inches, or roughly two-thirds of the furniture width. For finish, the guide says black suits almost every wall, while white stands out on dark walls.

Personalized designs, the article says, should keep added text short, with the spelling of every name and the date format checked before an order is placed. Names, initials and dates are formed in the metal itself rather than applied as a surface print. A related forest design on the site shows a mountain-and-pine scene that the guide suggests for hikers, campers and cabin owners. The listing offers 11 sizes and three finishes, including a white mountain with a black forest.

A separate placement guide on the site discusses size and style choices for living rooms. The gift article also notes that most pieces hang with a few screws and wall anchors, and that hardware details should be confirmed on the product page. Orders are usually processed within one to two business days, the guide says, and standard delivery typically takes five to 10 business days after that.

The guide recommends placing an order at least two to three weeks before the occasion, and earlier for personalized pieces and during busy holiday periods when carriers can run slower. Selected designs gathered for gifting also appear in the brand's gifting collection . Questions about a specific piece can be sent to the Grandmix team by email.
