PRESS RELEASE

The Newborn Care Solutions Agency Expands Services as Families Shift from Day Care to In-Home Newborn Support

The Newborn Care Solutions Agency

November 15, 2025

The Newborn Care Solutions Agency, the only newborn care placement agency founded by an internationally accredited training provider, announces expanded service offerings in response to growing demand for in-home newborn care specialist services across the United States. The agency reports a 40 percent increase in inquiries from families seeking alternatives to traditional facility-based infant care options over the past six months.

The expansion comes as recent industry data reveals a significant shift in parental preferences for newborn care. While many parents initially search for day care for newborn Arizona options, particularly in metropolitan areas, an increasing number are choosing personalized in-home support after learning about the benefits of working with certified specialists. The agency's expanded services now include enhanced matching protocols, extended postpartum support packages, and specialized care for multiples.

"Parents are recognizing that having a trained professional provide one-on-one attention in their home environment offers advantages that traditional daycare settings cannot match," said Tonya Sakowicz, Founder and CEO of The Newborn Care Solutions Agency. "Our expansion allows us to meet this growing demand while maintaining our rigorous standards for specialist training and family matching."

The agency's roster includes professionals with specialized certifications beyond basic newborn care, including lactation consulting, sleep training, and postpartum doula support. Each newborn care specialist undergoes comprehensive background screening and verification through the agency's proprietary vetting process, which exceeds industry standards. The expansion enables the agency to serve more families while maintaining its commitment to personalized matching based on each family's unique needs and preferences.

Industry research indicates that families searching for newborn care near me increasingly prioritize flexibility, personalized attention, and professional credentials when making care decisions. The Newborn Care Solutions Agency's model addresses these priorities through its bespoke matching process, which considers factors including care philosophy, scheduling needs, and specific skill requirements. The agency's specialists provide both daytime and overnight support, allowing parents to maintain their routines while ensuring their newborns receive expert care.

The expanded services also include enhanced support for families during the selection process, with dedicated placement coordinators guiding parents through interviews, contract negotiations, and onboarding procedures. This comprehensive approach has resulted in a 95 percent satisfaction rate among client families, according to internal agency data.

The Newborn Care Solutions Agency distinguishes itself as the only placement agency with roots in internationally accredited training programs. The agency's foundation in evidence-based education ensures that all referred specialists possess current knowledge of best practices in newborn care, infant development, and family support. This educational foundation, combined with ongoing professional development requirements, maintains the agency's position as a trusted resource for families nationwide.
